612-305-1430

Minneapolis

Tim concentrates his practice in commercial litigation with a focus on real estate, construction and title insurance issues. He has experience in the areas of mechanic's lien laws, public contractor's bonds, public bidding requirements and construction litigation. His background includes a strong commercial business practice representing closely-held corporations, principally in the construction industry.

Tim has earned his corporate clients' respect through his ability to thoroughly and clearly explain complex tax and business planning issues. Clients seek his advice not only on the legal ramifications of corporate decisions, but also on the practical implications of their business dealings.
