Philip Buque focuses his practice on real estate litigation and general civil litigation, representing clients in property-related disputes and complex civil matters. He brings experience from both private practice and judicial clerkships, giving him a strong understanding of litigation strategy, courtroom procedure, and judicial decision-making.

Philip regularly supports matters involving real property disputes, contested ownership and use issues, and related civil claims. His background includes extensive legal research, drafting court orders and memoranda, and assisting with case development through all phases of litigation. Clients and colleagues value his disciplined, detail-oriented approach and his ability to analyze complex issues efficiently and clearly.

Before joining DeWitt, Philip practiced as a real estate litigation associate and served in multiple judicial clerkships, gaining firsthand exposure to trials, evidentiary hearings, settlement conferences, and motion practice. His experience working closely with judges enhances his ability to anticipate procedural issues and present arguments that resonate with the court.
